The Challenge

The PGA was originally operating an on-premises IT solution, however, they needed a proactive, forward-thinking IT strategy that ensured the tools and systems staff used both fit the present environment and can take advantage of future developments in technology.

As well as creating the IT strategy, the internal IT team at The PGA needed additional support on future proofing the solution and planning the strategy for development for the next 3 years.

“Effective and efficient IT systems and the rapid resolution of any problems are key to the successful running of a business in the 21st century. So, we’re delighted to strengthen our association with Air IT and put it on a long-term footing.”

ROBERT MAXFIELD, PGA CHIEF EXECUTIVE

The Partnership

In October 2017, Air IT discovered a mutual sporting interest with an existing client, who of which was a member at the PGA. Since then, Air IT and the PGA have been working together in partnership, delivering strategic IT guidance and supporting the association on a commercial partner basis.

We look to continue to support The PGA and their vision to reflect the original objectives of the Association, the commitment to its members and its determination to recognise the changing times in which we live.
